

Centre for Interprofessional Practice

Helping you improve current practice

Are you part of a team working together with other public sector organisations to offer the best service to the public?

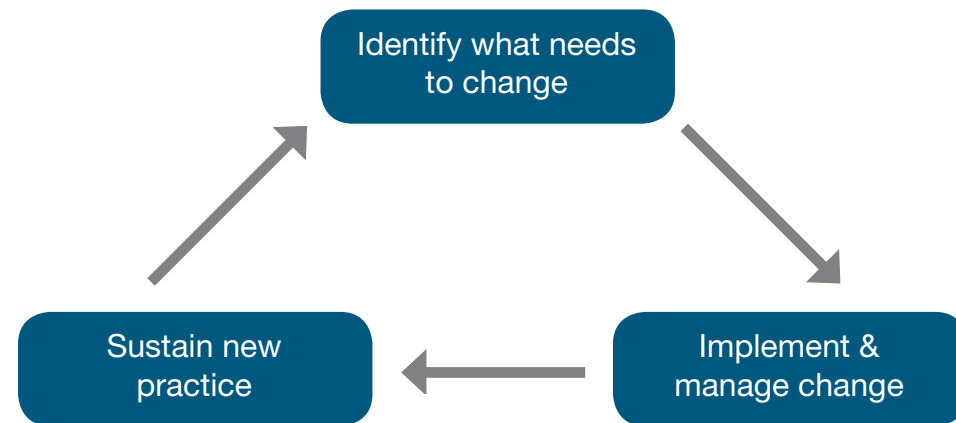

Are you finding it hard to keep on top of best practice?

Do think you think you could work more effectively?

So what needs to change?

... tough questions that can't be left unanswered...

The centre offers two courses to help you:

& increase your team's effectiveness

If you would like to know more about the courses outlined in this leaflet and how the centre can support you, please contact:

Susanne Lindqvist
Centre Director
University of East Anglia
Tel: +44 (0)1603 591274
Email: s.lindqvist@uea.ac.uk

A University of East Anglia Enterprise

Centre for Interprofessional Practice

Centre for Interprofessional Practice

Helping you improve current practice

We are experts and highly experienced in helping professionals and agencies develop interprofessional and inter-agency teamwork.

In order to work more effectively together you need to:

- identify what works, and what does not;
- identify what areas need change;
- initiate, manage and sustain the process of change.

Join either:

Our half-day day workshop

Aimed at individuals or groups in the public sector (including health, social services, police, local authority, fire service).

or

Our 3-month intervention

Aimed at groups in the public sector (including health, social services, police, local authority, fire service) working together across agencies to deliver a specific service or area of care.

And we can help you and your team to initiate, manage and sustain the process of change effectively.

